Space Golden League, the New Alliance of Europe's Leading Space Conferences

Today, four well established space conferences and fairs from Belgium, Germany, France, and Italy announce the creation of the Space Golden League. This new alliance is a historic first in European space collaboration, bringing together the continent's top space events.

Here are the four annual space events to have come together to form the league:

- European Space Conference, 28-29 January 2025, Brussels
- Munich Space Week, 23-27 March 2026, Munich
- Les Assises du NewSpace – the French space summit, 7-8 July 2025, Paris
- New Space Economy Expoforum, 10-12 December 2025, Rome

The Space Golden League forms Europe's first platform for space communication and information. While each event member pursues their own strategies, all are committed to the common goal of advancing the European space economy.

The Space Golden League Calendar is designed so as to ensure each event is spaced at least two months apart, allowing key economic players to participate in all four events throughout the year.

The partnership focuses on a unified communication strategy to promote each event, enhancing their visibility and reputation in Europe and may include the exchange of key speakers and partners. Building on this historic step, the league will explore potential future actions—including new partners meeting requirements and strategic direction.

This innovative project was initiated by the founder of the Assises du NewSpace, a success story supported by all key space players in France. Pierre-José Billotte will serve as the first league coordinator.

“The Space Golden League is our unified effort to facilitate the future of space on our continent. The European Space Conference, bringing together key speakers from top EU and national institutions, industries and start-ups, brings a unique European perspective to the ecosystem. We look forward to working closely with our partners part of this alliance, which will undoubtedly enhance the visibility, and impact, of our events” says Joelle Vanderauwera, Founding Partner Business Bridge Europe.
